Drowned Herself in the Brook.

One of the saddest events that has occurred in Norway for a long time, was the death of Mrs. C. Thomas Hayes, who was found in Tannery brook, Tuesday morning, at 8.15. Mrs. Hayes had not been well for some time, and for a few weeks her mind had been slightly affected, though no dangerous or suicidal symptoms had developed. About a month ago she returned from a short stay at Central Maine General Hospital, in Lewiston, and appeared to be all right. She attended, with her two daughters, an entertainment Monday evening, and though under some excitement, appeared to be in her usual health. Tuesday morning, shortly before 5 o'clock, her youngest daughter woke, and finding her mother missing, called her brother. They searched the house, and notified the neighbors, and a search was instituted. Failing to find Mrs. Hayes, a large number, including employees of the shoe factory, formed into parties, and a systematic search was instituted, the parties starting about 8 o'clock. In but a few minutes, at 8.15, Ross L. Bickford and Stoney Andrews were together in their search, visited the Beal street bridge over Tannery brook, and discovered the body, lying face upward, in about two feet of water. When, how or why she entered the water, will never be known.

Coroner A. P. Bassett was promptly notified. He deemed an inquest unnecessary and the body was removed to her home on Hazen street, from whence the funeral will be held Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Hayes leaves, besides her husband, who for the winter has been employed in Portland, a son, Charles R., and two daughters, Mrs. Gertrude I. Record and Josie H. Hayes, also two sisters, Mrs. C. L. DeCosta and Gertrude Teague, and a mother, Mrs. J. M. Teague. Her maiden name was Louise Teague, and her age 46 years.

Eastern telephones have been installed at A. B. Robbins' residence, ring 181-4, and Arthur Miller's blacksmith shop, ring 181-5.

Geo. F. Millett, who was operated upon at the Central Maine General Hospital in Portland a month ago, returned home Saturday.

Union Fast Day services will be held Thursday morning at 10.30, in the Methodist church. The sermon will be given by Rev. E. S. Cotton, of the Baptist church.

Mrs. Charles E. Holt, accompanied by Mr. Holt and Dr. B. F. Bradbury went to Dr. King's hospital at Portland, Tuesday morning, for a surgical operation for the growth on the side of her neck.

George D. Swift resumed work Monday on his house corner Main and Green streets. It is to have four rooms on the first floor and three chambers, and will be a very neat and attractive house.

Norway High school base ball team defeated the Ramfords Falls, Saturday, by the local high school team by a score of 16 to 4. Batteries—Bickford and Foss for Norway; Hassett and Merrill for Ramfords Falls.

It is said the ink on old newspapers kills microbes, hence old newspapers such as we sell are good to put under carpets. We sell 3 for a penny, and if that isn't enough we'll put in more. Old newspapers for sale at this office.

Wm. C. Cole resilled the barn of West Millett at South Paris, building seven new horse stalls and making other repairs last week. He also put in new silos and made other repairs to the barn on the Bemis place owned by J. H. Stuart.

Very appropriate and helpful services were held at the Baptist church, Sunday. The church was decorated with potted plants and flowers. The music was excellent and the pastor's sermon very fitting. Two candidates were baptized and admitted to the church. The evening service was helpful and a fitting close of a fine day.

Murders Wife's Visitor, Then Commits Suicide.

Edward Hilton Shoots George D. Young, in the Former's Home, Savagely Attacks Wife with Butcher Knife and Then Blows His Head Out—Easter Sunday Tragedy in East Waterford Result of Long Standing Disagreement Between the Two Men—Mrs. Hilton Will Recover.

Edward Hilton, living on the Temple Hill road in East Waterford, last Sunday carried into execution the threat which he had made several times during the last year that he would kill George D. Young unless the latter ceased his attentions to Mrs. Hilton, by shooting Young in the heart. Then he attacked Mrs. Hilton, stabbed her five times with a butcher knife, and when he thought she was dead blew his head out with the same weapon that he had used on the man, who is alleged to have broken up the Hilton home. Mrs. Hilton will recover from the knife wounds, unless complications set in which result in blood poisoning. Her condition, however, is precarious.

The tragedy happened in the Hilton home, located in the sparsely settled hamlet about half a mile from Rice's Corner and a quarter of a mile from the home of George Hilton, a dealer in milk and cream, on the road just off the East Waterford highway. The house sets back well from the road, is a one-story, tumble-down affair, which long ago saw much better times than it has for the past few months, in which George Young came into the neighborhood and finished a room over Haskell's cider mill.

There he had divided his time between the room over the cider mill and the dif- ferent places where Mrs. Hilton had found it convenient to stay. The Hilton house is about 40 feet long and there are four rooms for living purposes under the roof. Until the latter part of 1904 Mrs. Hilton lived with her husband, the children, and Mrs. Nancy Hilton, 57 years old and the mother of Edward. The furnishings in the house were scant. Hilton supported his family until Young appeared on the scene. That was in the latter part of December, when Young returned from Hallowell and sought work in the lumber mill a few rods from the Hilton home. Although his son, Merton Young, lived as near the mill as the Hilton family, the elder Young found it more to his liking to board with the Hiltons. He had not been in the house long before Mrs. Hilton's suspicions were started that the wife's relations with Young were other than those of a friend, and Young was ordered from the house. Young then went to Merton Young's and stayed there until about two weeks ago, when he returned to the home of Hilton.

In the meantime Hilton and his wife agreed to live in separate parts of the house, the son taking two rooms on the west side of the building and turning over the two small boys' rooms to Mrs. Hilton. The husband and Mrs. Hilton took the two other rooms and lived there with her son Clarence, 11 years old, Hattie O., and Anna aged 6 years. The family dined at the same table but it is said by Mrs. Hilton that she had no conversation with her husband regarding any matter until Sunday morning, half an hour before the attempt was made on her life.

Something like three weeks ago, or when Young returned from his latest trip to some place which no one knows anything about, Mrs. Edward Hilton spent the most of her time at home. Then she was called to the home of Merton Young, to nurse Mrs. Young during childbirth. The next day after she there Young appeared on the scene, and was making the house of his son his home until Sunday morning. Hilton, in the meantime, was being told different stories by those in the neighborhood, but had nothing else to do but look after other people's affairs, and as each new story was told him Hilton's anger increased and his hatred for Young found no diminishing. The climax was near at hand.

He had arisen early and told his son that he intended going to Hebron in a few days, and if the weather was good he might start on the journey that day.

Young told his mother that unless his wife Ellen kept away from Young her eyes would be gouged out and Young would meet a violent end.

Mrs. Hilton pleaded with her daughter-in-law to cease receiving attentions from Young, and a week ago last Monday she returned from the Young home to her own roof. A reconciliation between Hilton and his wife was in view Sunday morning.

Norway Municipal Court.

Sunday afternoon, Deputy sheriff E. E. DeCosta was called to the shop of Harry Lane, where were several men gathered and under the influence of liquor. The doors were fastened and the office gained entrance by opening a window. Most of the men inside fled, but DeCosta gathered in Harry Lane, Fred Kelley and Daniel Delaney. The latter undertook to resist arrest, using strong language and finally assailed the officer by hitting him in the face, cutting him somewhat. The latter tackled Delaney and threw him, reducing him to a proper condition of submission and ornamented with a pair of handcuffs promptly. In the Municipal court Monday morning the prisoner was arraigned on a charge of larceny and assault, and fined $5 and costs, each, in the cases of Lane and Delaney amounting to over $17. Kelley's a little less than that sum. All paid.

Monday morning, James Morgan, who had been brought to the jail the Thursday previous and had been suffering from delirium tremens, was brought before the court, and sentenced to 30 days in jail.

Charles F. Godwin.

Charles F. Godwin died in Lewiston, Monday afternoon at three o'clock. He was a native of Norway, but his parents moved to Lewiston when he was but seven years of age and he has spent the rest of his life there. He worked for years in the mill, later ran a public carriage but for about six years had done little. His death resulted from consumption. He is survived by a mother, Mrs. Martha Godwin, and a sister, Mrs. Lillian Cross of Norway. His father was Frank Godwin, son of Charles C. Godwin of Waterford.

Funeral services were held at Lewiston this Wednesday afternoon, and the body will be interred at Pine Grove cemetery here Thursday.

Great New England Comedy.

The Joshua Simpkins company with a fine brass band and splendid orchestra will be seen at Norway Opera House, Monday evening, May 1st. The play is made of fun and realism combining the pleasing features of realistic melodrama and the ever popular racy play. The character sketches are said to be very clever, while there is an abundance of good music, singing and dancing in it. These lovable old country characters are introduced and their sayings and doings create much amusement. The company has been successful since its first appearance. The saw-mill scene in the third act is said to be wonderfully realistic, a genuine circular saw being seen in motion, with Uncle Josh's son lashed to a log by the villains and started toward the chattering teeth of the rapidly revolving saw. Prices 25, 35 and 50 cts. Seats on sale at Stone's Drug Store.

There will be a social dance at Norway Opera House, Fast night. Music by Stearns' orchestra.

Lizzie Johnson, who is receiving treatment at Dr. King's hospital in Portland, is recovering nicely.

Mrs. W. W. Hooper is to make her home at Weymouth, Mass., with her sister, Mrs. C. H. Hooper.

Mrs. Walter C. Leavitt is slowly gaining from her serious illness. Her mother, Mrs. F. W. Faunce, is with her at her home in Lynn, Mass.

Steamer Pennessawasee was put in commission Monday, and is docked at the corn shop. Carl Crommett is pilot, and Eugene Stevens, engineer.

Street commissioner Geo. W. Wood has teams making an extensive job on the westerly end of Maple street. The material is taken from the hill by L. M. Longley.

George W. Winslow of the Norway Hand Laundry, has been suffering for a week with rheumatism in the right arm and hand. He has been taking a vacation from his work this week.

Wm. R. Redden, a student at Bates college, will supply the Congregational pulpit both Sunday morning and evening. He is a member of the debating team and a able young man.

Twenty of the members of the Junior Y. P. S. C. E. of the Congregational church held a service Sunday afternoon at 3.30, at the Home for Aged Women. They sang several songs sweetly, and the pastor gave a brief address.

Blanche Bradbury has closed her house at Norway Lake and moved to Harrison, where she has taken a rent, and later on will open a small store and go into business. The Bradbury estate at Norway Lake is marked "For sale."

The funeral services of Mrs. Susan P. Preble, who died at Auburn, Thursday, were held in that city, Friday afternoon, Charles R. Tenney, officiating. The body was brought to Pine Grove cemetery, this Wednesday, for burial. She was a sister of Jason Rowe.

Col. H. D. Littlefield has gone to North Lanes for his annual fishing trip. He is to be the guest of C. C. Newirk of Boston at his new cottage at the head of Kezar Lake. Mr. Newirk is the funny editor of "all sorts" in the Boston Daily Post, and besides being a journalist of Norway Lake, is also an expert and enthusiastic angler. Blanche Bradbury is to be the guest of Mrs. Newirk during the month of May and will also ply the rod and reel.

At the Congregational church Easter Sunday, there was a g. and attendance. The pastor's theme was the line of Easter in the light of modern scholarship, the sermon being a presentation of the scientific side of religion and demonstrating the truth that all branches of science were in harmony, and that theology was as truly a science as any in existence, and citing corroborative evidence of religious truth from associative sciences. The choir, C. W. Horne, M. Louise Staples, Mrs. Luella Smiley and H. H. Horne, sang Easter music. Miss Staples playing voluntaries upon the pipe organ, and accompanying the choir upon the piano. At five o'clock in the afternoon a vesper service was held in the church, consisting of several selections by the choir, solo by Miss Staples, remarks by the pastor, reading by Annie S. Emery, Grace L. Griffith, Mrs. H. L. Bartlett, Bessie Chase and Florence Rideout.

Ice Leaves the Lake and Fish Commence to Bite.

A forty mile-an-hour wind, followed by a warm rain last Friday night, cleared Lake Pennessawasee so that on Saturday morning there was nothing but floes of anchor ice along the shore of the entire body of water. The lake cleared 10 days earlier than last year, and caught many of the fishermen with their tackle ready for fishing, but they all got busy as soon as word reached town from Frost's Corner that there was not enough ice to interfere with fishing.

But something else stood in the way of the fishermen. The boom around the big logs dumped out at the pier at the west shore of the lake and which are to be worked into lumber at the Cummings' mill next summer, broke during the day and the logs scattered to all points of the compass. Orders were given to the water police to keep the Pennessawasee on Sunday morning and coral the vagrant floating pieces of timber.

Capt. Timothy Heath had the steamer doing business by noon of that day, and Sunday night most of the 1,000,000 feet were loaded near the ice pier.

Chief of Fishermen Mel W. Sampson and James C. True, who have had their fishing tackle ready for business since the lake was closed with ice last fall, dodged their boats in and out between the logs during the day, and Sampson landed a 2½ pound redspot before night, while True had to be contented with a 2-pounder. Since then most of the fishermen except John A. Woodman, of the Big House, have had a try at the fish, but with little success. Woodman has been busy during the week towing a large raft from the shore near Crockett's Bridge to his camp, The Kingfisher, and will have it landed there before the end of the week. He will then attempt to land the biggest redspot in the lake.

The ice in the brooks and small streams, which do not empty in the lake, have been clear of ice for more than a week, but the fish are not yet very thick.

The winter and the gradual melting of the snow melting produced little water, and most of the streams are too low for fishing. Good captures of smelts have been made during the last few nights, however.

The jewelers will close each evening except Monday and Saturday during the summer months.

Two men are getting out wood for shovel handles on Murray Russell's land and boarding at Asa Needham's.

Norway Lodge No. 10, and Mount Hope Rebekah Lodge No. 38, I. O. O. F., attend divine service Sunday morning at the Methodist church.

Mrs. H. J. Bangs underwent an operation for appendicitis Tuesday forenoon, at her home in Norway. It was very successful, and Mrs. Bangs recovered nicely from the anesthetic and is quite comfortable. The operation was performed by Dr. J. H. Bangs, who formerly lived here.

Wednesday morning, Dr. A. D. Parmenter was before the court on a charge of practicing medicine, he having advertised a treatment and cure for pain. No evidence appearing that he had practiced medicine within the intent of the law, he was discharged.

The annual encampment of the National Guard of the State of Maine will be held at Augusta, Aug. 5 to 18. The first regiment will go into camp the 12th. This is the first encampment since 1902, the Guard having participated in the maneuvers at Portland in 1903 and at Manassas, Va., in 1904. It is expected the State shoot will be held at Sanford on the range of F Company in October.

Bertha Strout is taking music lessons of Mrs. Cragin.

Jonathan Starbird is treating his house to a new coat of paint.

A Mr. Mayo of South Paris is to move his family into Eldridge Cummings' rent on Alpine Street.

Missionary meeting was held at the M. E. Church Vestry, Wednesday p. m. with much interest.

The district meeting of Rebekahs will be held with Mt. Pleasant Lodge, South Paris, Friday evening. The members of Mt. Hope Lodge are invited to attend.

Miss A. D. Witham came from Portland last Sunday to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Witham. She will also come up on Thursday to attend the funeral of her school mate and friend Ollie Stuart of South Paris.

The reception given Rev. and Mrs. Brooks last Thursday evening was largely attended. The church parlor was the scene of the reception. The table was elegantly decorated with plants and flowers. Special music was rendered very fine, and refreshments of ice cream and cake was served.

E. W. Bartlett of Lynn arrived Tuesday night for a few days' fishing in the waters near Norway. He had spent several days at Sebago, and brought along with him two salmon, one weighing nine and the other eight pounds. The big fish was hooked in the side and it took Mr. Bartlett more than an hour to land him in the boat.

Henry N. Merrill for 40 years a lawyer at Haverhill, Mass., died in that city yesterday from the results of a surgical operation, aged 77 years. For several months he had been judge of the Haverhill police court. He was a native of Norway and was educated at public and private schools in Norway, Saco and Limington, and at Bowdoin college. He became principal of the Norway Liberal Institute and afterwards studied law in the office of William Pitt Fessenden at Portland. He married Mary, daughter of Harry Rust.

EAST OXFORD.
Elmer Libby spent Sunday with his cousin, Arthur Libby at Minot.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Needham went to Harrison, Saturday, to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Levi Harmon.

A. K. Thomas, wife and daughter Helen spent Sunday in Portland, the guests of Dr. N. Marshall and wife.

SOUTH PARIS.

Death of Olive M. Stuart.

It was with a sense of surprise and truly shock that the people of South Paris learned of the death of Olive M. Stuart, which occurred at 8 o'clock Monday morning from gastritis. She had occasional attacks for some two or three years, one coming on the latter part of last week, but few people had any idea that she was dangerously sick.

She was 29 years old, the only child of Griffin Stuart and wife. She was graduated from South Paris high school in 1892, took a year's course in the State Normal school at Gorham, and taught the Pleasant street school for a year. Since that time she had conducted a millinery business at her home on High street.

She had been a member of the First Congregational church some twelve years, being active in the Y. P. S. C. E. and Sunday school work. She was a member of the Seneca Club and president at the time of her death.

Funeral services will be held Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Methodist Trustees.
The trustees of the Methodist church met Monday evening. The former board of officers was elected:

Chairman—Winfield S. Starbird.
Sec.—Chandler Swift.
Treas.—George I. Burnham.

Geo. H. Davis has bought the lot and stable on Maple street.

Elsie Bolster is teaching in Woodstock school commencing this week.

Gerald Clifford is at home from Boston where he is attending dental college.

Mrs. E. N. Anderson returned last Wednesday from a week's stay in Portland.

Rachel Knight of Jamaica Plain, Mass., is a guest of her grandfather, Joseph Knight.

George C. Aldrich is at work for John McFhee and with his family is moving to the farm.

Mrs. T. J. Ramsdell and two children of Caribou are visiting her parents, S. R. Ellis and wife.

The Woman's Missionary society holds the regular meeting with Mrs. Benjamin Swett, Friday evening.

Rev. A. W. Pottle, formerly of the Methodist church here, who was assigned to Bath, has resigned.

At the regular meeting of Mt. Pleasant Rebekah lodge, Friday evening the degree will be conferred on:

Rev. Howard A. Clifford went to East Wilton, Friday, to attend the funeral of a friend, Hon. D. G. Bean.

George Wise has sold his marble business including the Pleasant street shop to J. R. Bolster of Norway.

Roy H. Porter is at home from the University of Maine. He is accompanied by his roommate, Mr. Emery of Eastport.

Saturday afternoon about 4 o'clock fire was discovered in a box of sawdust which had been used as a spittoon in one of the bedrooms of New Hall. It had burned nearly through the floor but had not blazed.

Whooping Cough.

The quick relief afforded by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in cases of whooping cough, makes it a favorite with the mothers of small children. It liquefies the tough mucus, making it easier to expectorate, keeps the cough loose and counteracts any tendency toward pneumonia. This remedy has been used in many epidemics of whooping cough and always with perfect success. There is no danger whatever from the disease when it is freely given. It contains nothing injurious and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. For sale by Noyes Drug Store, Norway; Shurtlett's, South and West Paris. 10-19

The Farmers' Privilege.

As it Looks to the City Man. A business man of the said to me, "As soon as I have enough money, I intend to buy the old farm and live there the remainder of my days." Here was a symptom. It represents quite a universal feeling. The fact is, town people look toward the farm with longing and admiring eyes. We see in it the ideal of human existence. We chafe beneath our cramped and artificial modes of living, and long for the free and full life of the open country.

The farmer, on the other hand, is likely to look upon the man of the town as possessing a monopoly of the good things of life, to get restless and feel that his life is one of banishment from society, of unceasing toil with small reward. Let him not be deceived. As we see him, he is in daily touch with nature in all her abounding wealth. What of this earth is more to be desired? Who is not a lover of nature? It is not a mere sentiment—it is instinct. It is not childishness—it is sane maturity. We all love nature in varied forms, so it is not strange that the man of the town feels that his life is unnatural, abnormal, and that only the man in the country truly lives.

What is there in the town that can compare with the farm home in May or June—with apple blossoms, hum of bees, song of birds, the universal leaping into life of a thousand forms in the great world of nature. Lowell's rare, perfect day in June can be realized only in the almost perfect day of the well cooked, very imperfect at such a time.

The other day a farmer drove into town and stopped to speak with me a moment. He sat behind a pair of the most beautiful seal-smooth bays. I felt almost hurt as I looked at those sleek, gentle animals and realized how far above my privilege that farmer was living. I wonder how many of our farmers appreciate how true and rich is the privilege of possessing and rearing and loving a large stock of the common domestic animals. What a pleasure in a beautiful, well-bred horse, a herd of royal blood, a flock that would have made David sick with envy!

As we see the farmer, he is in the midst of abundance to eat and drink and to wear. It is worth a trip to the country just to get one look and one smell into a prosperous farmer's well-filled cellar. He gets accustomed to it, and forgets to appreciate it. To the city man, the abundance of such things is a thrill of delight—like a field of blossoming clover to a herd of famished cattle. Not that we do not get enough to eat in the town—we are usually pretty well fed; but the freshness of it in the farmer's cellar, the abundance of it—the abounding richness of the aroma! He is a king in comparison. His feed is not dealt out to him in small rations at a grocery counter—he is the original possessor, the producer himself, the lord of the manor; we are all at his mercy.

Such independence of life and subsistence makes the farmer truly the first citizen of the world. He stands at the fountain head, and we drink at his will. We are the forlorn ones, such a sight gives a thrill of delight—like a field of blossoming clover to a herd of famished cattle. Not that we do not get enough to eat in the town—we are usually pretty well fed; but the freshness of it in the farmer's cellar, the abundance of it—the abounding richness of the aroma! It is not a mere sentiment—it is instinct. It is not childishness—it is sane maturity. We all love nature in varied forms, so it is not strange that the man of the town feels that his life is unnatural, abnormal, and that only the man in the country truly lives.

What is there in the town that can compare with the farm home in May or June—with apple blossoms, hum of bees, song of birds, the universal leaping into life of a thousand forms in the great world of nature. Lowell's rare, perfect day in June can be realized only in the almost perfect day of the well cooked, very imperfect at such a time.

The other day a farmer drove into town and stopped to speak with me a moment. He sat behind a pair of the most beautiful seal-smooth bays. I felt almost hurt as I looked at those sleek, gentle animals and realized how far above my privilege that farmer was living. I wonder how many of our farmers appreciate how true and rich is the privilege of possessing and rearing and loving a large stock of the common domestic animals. What a pleasure in a beautiful, well-bred horse, a herd of royal blood, a flock that would have made David sick with envy!

As we see the farmer, he is in the midst of abundance to eat and drink and to wear. It is worth a trip to the country just to get one look and one smell into a Grief's Summons.

Grief, standing at my portals silently, In robes and tappings, beckoned me To follow her, and leave the festal board At which I sat, I answered not a word. Within was warmth and love and cheer, The music of friend's voices, sweet and clear, Without was solitude and darkness, woe, And silence that would not let me go. Stern grief's voice vibrated, "Who art thou Who darest refuse my proffered company? The angeliest and best have walked with me." "Oh Grief!" I cried aloud in piteous tone, "Who walks with thee must also walk alone, No loving friend can tread with me thy path, No fond heart shield me from thy cruel wrath. "Monster!" I began, and leave me here in peace, I sought the night, then let thy waiting cease." And stubbornly I turned away and still sought to enjoy my pleasures, but a chill fear crept into the banquet hall, and lo, When Grief's departed friends began to go, And mirth rang false, flowers drooped, and vines grew stark, The viands were tasteless, glittering lights grew pale. Neglected I found myself, disgraced, alone, When shame drew near and claimed me for her own. Vindictive with anger, I upbraided Shame, She smirked and mouthed at me, "Am I to blame Because thou hast proved cowardly and weak Enough when Grief had summoned thee to seek? Thy selfish pleasures still, nor heed her voice? Faintly thou hadst your chance and took your choice." So now I wait in penitence and pain For honest Grief to pass this way again.

The Woe of the Sturgis Bill.

Tell me not the dreadful tale, The Sturgis bill has stopped the sale; Run we can never drink again, Down in the good old State of Maine. Old order too is on the bum, The Sturgis bill makes all look glum, We can never drink it again, Down in the good old State of Maine. The staff of life we hold so dear, The Sturgis bill has killed our beer; Lager we'll never drink again, Down in the good old State of Maine. There is nothing left for us to drink, The Sturgis bill, O Heavens! think; When all of us are gone, Down in the good old State of Maine.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury, as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering in through the mucous surfaces. It is a fact that should be noted on all prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Emigrants over the Grand Trunk.

The Dominion Line steamship Kingston arrived in Portland a few days ago with about 900 passengers, which were taken west over the Grand Trunk in two special trains. 350 of these passengers were from Dr. Bernardo's school in London, who have found homes among the farmers of Canada. He sends over a ship-load of these each spring. The balance of the 900 passengers were ordinary emigrants, unless the 40 runaway Russian soldiers can be called out of the ordinary. None of these could speak English, but through the Russian interpreter it was learned that they had escaped from their native land because ordered to the front to fight the Japs. They also say that there is a great deal of discontent in Russia, and that conditions are serious there.

Another Dominion liner, the Canada, arrived in Portland with about 500 passengers. Of these about 100 left the city via the Boston & Maine, and the balance via the Grand Trunk special train. 48 of these passengers were London waiters—boys between the ages of 10 and 12—who were going to Hamilton, Province of Ontario, where a Dr. Stephenson has established farms for care and maintenance of such waiters. The balance of the party was composed of 180 married men and their families, known as the Gates party. These people are unfortunates, who have been gathered by the London Daily Telegraph and openings found for them in the new world. 70 of them were sent to Toronto, 15 to Montreal, 46 to Ontario and 5 to Hamilton.

Mrs. Delphina Whitman.

Mrs. Delphina Whitman died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Rufus Farrah, in Grafton, after a short illness.

Mrs. Whitman was taken with the grip, which rapidly developed and resulted in her death. She was 87 years of age and the widow of the late Harrison Whitman, of Woodstock.

Mr. Whitman died many years ago, and for some years Mrs. Whitman made her home with her son, Rev. H. S. Whitman, the well known Universalist minister and former president of Westbrook Seminary. For some years past Mrs. Whitman has made her home with her daughter in Grafton. One other son, George Whitman, survives.

Mrs. Whitman was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jotham Perham, late of Woodstock, and was connected with the well known Perham family, of which Governor Perham is a member.

The remains were taken to Bryant's Pond, where funeral services were held and the interment took place.

TORTURING PAIN.

Half This Man's Sufferings Would Have Killed Many a Person, But Doan's Cured Him.

Thousands of grateful people are telling every day how Doan's Kidney Pills cured them of distressing and dangerous kidney and bladder troubles.

Yet other thousands are suffering every day from these same ills. Why? They are either very negligent or very skeptical. Neglect of kidney disorders leads to dropsy, diabetes, Bright's disease and other fatal diseases.

Sincere, honest testimony like the following should convince every skeptic.

A. C. Sprague, stock dealer, of Normal, Ill., writes: "For two whole years I was doing nothing but buying medicines to cure my kidneys. I do not think that any man ever suffered as I did and lived. The pain in my back was so bad that I could not sleep at night. I could not ride a horse and sometimes was unable even to ride in a car. My condition was critical when I sent for Doan's Kidney Pills. I used three boxes and they cured me. Now I can go anywhere and do as much as anybody. I sleep well and feel no discomfort at all."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mr. Sprague will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-McLure Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Sold by all dealers; price, fifty cents per box.

Additional Deputy Sheriffs.

Sheriff B. G. McIntire has commissioned additional deputies as follows:
George W. Dockham, Dixfield.
Stephen D. Johnson, Oxford, (Welchville, P. O.)
Oswell H. Fletcher, Hiram, (East Hiram, P. O.)
Frank P. Davis, Bridgton, for Cumberland County.

Store Burned at Dixfield.

The store of M. Holman & Co. of Dixfield was burned Saturday morning, fire catching around the furnace. Mr. Keene was the proprietor of the general grocery store and Mr. Holman of the general department store.

Mrs. Powers, who lived over Holman's store, lost everything except the clothes she had on. Dr. Swasey, a dentist, who has an office in this building, lost everything. A new carpet had recently been put into his office and the office renovated. Mrs. Wilber, who lived over Keene's store, lost practically everything. The drug store of J. P. Johnston was damaged to some extent, the window being cracked and broken and the paint scratched. Mrs. Sweet, who lived over Johnson's store moved everything out and the goods were badly damaged. They were not insured. The Holman store owned by M. McIntire was sold to F. D. Newton, a trader in town and everything was done except the writings.

SOUTH WATERFORD.

Ethel Monroe is teaching at Falmouth Foreside.

Mayflowers are not as plentiful as usual this spring.

Several of our neighbors are preparing to paint their buildings.

School at Mutiny Corner opened last Monday with 24 scholars.

Remember the Mock Graduation to be reproduced Wednesday evening, Apr. 26, at Sweden.

At the L. and S. club held at E. P. Kimball's last Tuesday evening there were 39 present.

F. A. Hall is in town. He is stopping at Rumford Point for a time giving shows in the surrounding towns.

The farmers are busy with their spring work, while house cleaning, including papering, whitewashing, etc., is in order.

Mrs. Mary Lovejoy has been visiting for a time at Charles Gibbs', Bridgton. She intends to come to the farm in a few days.

Alice Monroe has returned to Shelburne, N. H., where she is teaching school, this being her second year in that place.

Rev. J. B. Howard of the Methodist church, who has been with us for nearly two years, left for his new field of labor, April 24. We wish him and his family health and prosperity in their new charge.

A town meeting is called for next Monday at 1 o'clock p. m. at the town house at Waterford to see about aiding the proposed railroad, in securing for them the right of way through that town. The approximate cost of the damage has been ascertained and it is only fair that the town should assist in purchasing it as those over whose land it goes can hardly afford to give the damage.

The L. and S. club meet with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bell, Wednesday, May 3, with the following program:

Clinton Scribner, who has been in Waterford during the winter, is now stopping at A. W. Weston's.

The W. C. T. U., assisted by some members of the L. T. L., decorated the church for the Easter service, and as a welcome to Rev. Mr. Tuttle, who is returned to this charge for the coming year.

Murders Wife's Visitor, Then Commits Suicide.

lives, he was unable to control himself. From a brisk walk he increased his speed and he was nearly out of breath from running when he reached the woodshed of his house. Carefully, noiselessly going through the shed door he saw Young sitting in a rocking chair in the dining-room, Mrs. Hilton busy washing his clothing.

A loaded shell of buckshot was slipped into the single-barreled muzzle-loading weapon, and with the gun poised before him Hilton rushed into the room and caught Young like a rat in a trap. He had no chance to move, and if he did Hilton pushed him back into his seat with an oath.

"Now I've got you!" he cried in rage and the gun was discharged. Young gasped once and was dead. The shot entered below the right shoulder blade and tore away the windpipe and a portion of the breast. Mrs. Hilton, alarmed at the shot, turned from her work at the washbasin and tried to reason with her husband, in whose eyes she saw the gleam of a mad man. Hilton would have no arguing from her, his only talk being that he had killed the man who had broken up his home and now he was going to finish the job. Laying the discharged weapon on the dining-room table, already set for the noon meal, Hilton drew a butcher knife with a blade four and one-half inches long from his trouser's pocket.

Mrs. Hilton realized that a death struggle was to take place and that the chances were 1000 to 1 that she would be dead before it ended. She decided to take the chance and made a rush to pass her husband, who was brandishing the keen weapon in his right hand. She didn't get by him on her way to the shed for as she reached the threshold over which the dead body of Young lay, where it had fallen from the chair, Hilton caught her by the arm and threw her to the floor. As he pressed his knees upon her breast he advised her to say a prayer, if she cared to, and then told her that he was going to gouge her eyes out.

Screaming with terror Mrs. Hilton attempted to fight off the blows of the knife, as they fell thick and fast but not with an aim of accuracy. One thrust hit her on the side just over the eye, and then another wound was made over the right eye. Another thrust and the one which Hilton evidently thought would prove fatal, caught the woman on top of the head and made a scalp wound that reached the skull. The sight of thick flowing blood undoubtedly gave the murderer the impression that his work had been completed, for he rose from the woman's body and then looked at the work he had apparently accomplished.

Mrs. Hilton was deceived by her husband's quietness for she attempted to look through her blood-covered eyes and see what he was about to do next. As she moved her head, Hilton picked up the gun from the table and dealt her a blow on the shoulder, and the woman remained quiet.

"That was what saved my life," she said to a reporter a few hours after the crime. From the time Hilton struck her with the gun, Mrs. Hilton is the only one who can tell just what happened and her narrative is not lucid because of her mental condition due to excitement and nervousness from loss of blood. She says that Hilton supposing that she was dead, kicked her on the head and mumbled something about he had settled the matter which had been troubling his mind for a long time.

"I might as well make a clean job of it," Mrs. Hilton says she heard her husband say, as he slipped the unloaded shell from the gun and replaced it with another, fully loaded. As he snapped down the breech the shell exploded and the charge blew off the side of the door leading into the dining-room. Then Hilton walked into the room where Young lay dead and looked for a full minute at the body.

Mrs. Hilton, almost overcome from loss of blood, crawled to the door leading from the shed into the yard and the air revived her. The little daughter Hattie had been playing in the yard, a hundred feet from the house, but knew nothing of the crime which had been committed under the roof of the tumble-down house she called home. As the mother caught sight of the child she fell into the yard, raised herself to her feet and then called to Hattie to run for her life, that her father was killing everyone in the house.

Mrs. Hilton was just passing the room on the east end of the house on her way to the Temple Hill road, 100 feet from the house, when she heard another shot and heard the body of her husband fall to the floor. He had reloaded the gun, and the other end was fastened to the gun trigger. Then holding the muzzle of the weapon against his stomach he had pulled the gun toward him and as the string was drawn tight the gun was discharged. The heavy load of shot had blown out the walls of the stomach, just below the breast bone and so close to the heart that that organ's arteries were hanging in shreds when the undertaker arrived three hours later.

Little Hattie, screaming at the top of her voice and frightened nearly into hysterics at the uncanny sight her mother presented as she fled down to the road and to a place of safety, fairly flew across the field to the home of First Selectman Charles O. Pridg, some 200 feet from the Hilton home. In frenzied, excited screams Hattie told of the murder and asked for help to save her mother from the hands of her father, whom she did not know then had finished his bloody work by putting himself out of existence.

Mrs. Hilton, her bloody hair flying in the wind and nearly blinded with blood, fled to the store of Rolfe Brothers, at the foot of the Temple Hill road, and within gunshot of the home of Morton Young on one side and the sawmill where the weapon had been secured on the other. As she crossed the threshold she fell unconscious, but those who ran to the door knew that something more than ordinary for that quiet neighborhood had happened. They didn't suspect it was murder at first, and were loath to believe the story told by Mrs. Hilton after she had been revived by restoratives.

Word was telephoned to High Sheriff Bertram G. McIntire, who lives not far from the scene of the crime, and he hastened at once to the Hilton home. In the room on the west end of the Hilton house he found Mrs. Nancy Hilton sitting at a window looking out upon the road that passed her house. She is infirm and the racket caused by the murder and suicide had not disturbed her. It is doubtful if she knows yet that her son died by his own hand after killing a neighbor, and then attempting to take the life of his wife. Realizing that news of the tragedy might be fatal to the aged woman, Mr. McIntire induced her to leave the house on the pretense that she was to go to the Waterford town farm. The trouble which had been brewing in the house during the last few months, had caused her from time to time to make the remark that she would find her declining days much more quiet there than she would under the roof of her son's home. Therefore, she offered no resistance at Mr. McIntire's suggestion, and went quietly from the house to the home of a neighbor. As she was lead from the house which had for many years been her home she passed the open door leading to the room where the dead body of George Young was lying, and within 10 feet of the body of Edward Hilton.

Sheriff McIntire looked over the house carefully, and then sent for County Attorney Charles P. Barnes, and State Detective and Officer Albert P. Bassett, of Norway. Both drove on the double quick to the Hilton home, word having reached them that Hilton had escaped after killing Young, and was hiding in the woods near by. They were somewhat late, therefore, to find both Young and his assailant dead when they got to the Hilton house.

The bodies of the men were searched, and on Hilton $1.02 was found. Young had $34.37 in money and a check for $100.00 in his pocket. In Hilton's clothing two empty shells were found, as well as one fully loaded, all of which fitted the gun with which the crime had been committed. The shot which entered Young's body was the most terrific of any that Hilton fired, the gun being held so close to the body that the man's clothing was set on fire and his face filled with powder.

Coroner Bassett, after hearing the stories of several neighbors and Mrs. Hilton, the widow of the murderer, decided that an inquest was unnecessary, and the bodies were given into the care of Undertaker Charles D. Morse, of Waterford. County Attorney Barnes sought out Mr. Hilton, and gave him a detailed description of the tragedy and rehearsed the troubles which she alleged she had had with her husband, and put all the blame on him for all. She gave up several letters which had been written by her husband, and one of them was claimed to have been written by the eight-year-old daughter of the dead man. In it the blame also was placed on the husband, but the stories told by neighbors who are conversant with the case, are beginning to declare that he was driven to the crime by circumstances which he was unable to correct.

Hilton had always borne a good reputation among his townspeople, but since his father's death, a few years ago, there have been different degrees of trouble in the family, other than that brought about by Mrs. Hilton receiving the attentions of Young. When Hilton's father died he left the property to his widow, Mrs. Nancy Hilton, and the terms of the will the property, on her death, was to revert to her son, who died a murderer and suicide.

At various times stories have been told that the younger Mrs. Hilton had succeeded in procuring a divorce, changed from the name of Mrs. Nancy Hilton to that of her own. It is believed Hilton had the impression that when he died his widow would get control of the property, eject Mrs. Nancy Hilton from her home, and if she were living, then do with the estate just as she saw fit. It is also another story that Edward Hilton believed that his widow would marry Young, should the conditions fix themselves rightly for that step, and Hilton, naturally, was much averse to such a step on her part.

In order that the children might not get an inkling of the family trouble, those who were old enough to understand such matters, had been sent away from the Hilton home, and only the children, Hattie and Anna, remained under the parental roof. Clarence was living with a neighbor, and after the tragedy all three played together, none of them seeming to understand what had taken place.

The removal of Mrs. Nancy Hilton from the house which she had so long occupied had the pathetic coloring touch of the crime. With a relish that was almost morbid she consented to accompany Sheriff McIntire in a carriage, her idea being that she was to leave the place which had caused her so much sorrow in her declining years, and having been given to understand that she no longer had an interest in the property, she went to County Attorney Barnes who was taken in that idea, as the estate still stood in her name, and was to pass to her son Edward when she died. Now, however, it is more than probable that Mrs. Edward Hilton will never see the estate, although it is not yet known by her or her relatives if such will be the case.

Young was the son of Dana Young, who for a long time lived in Norway in the house opposite the sawmill on the Temple Hill road. He was about 30 years old, and in years past had lived in Hebron, Minot and Hallowell, going to East Waterford when he had no other place to visit. In the latter place he had gained a name as being industrious and a good workman as well as the lumber and cider mills.

On Oct. 21, 1888, he was arrested at his home in West Minot by State Detective Bassett on the charge of breaking and entering the general store and bakery of a man named Briggs at Mechanic Falls. The stolen property, most of which was found in a barn a mile from Young's home, was identified, Young was indicted at Auburn and sentenced to four years in State prison at a session of the supreme court in Auburn. Previous to that he had been married, and his wife, when he was convicted, by law, became a divorced woman. She came to Norway, was engaged as housekeeper for George Jackson, and was working in his home when Young was released from prison.

Young sought her out, and attempted to have her live with him again. His passion grew more passionate and when he had almost reached climax, Jackson appeared on the scene and knocked Young down with a blow on the head from a stove-lifter, and Jackson's scalp was pretty badly cut and Jackson was arrested on the charge of assault. Before the case had come to trial, Young had married another woman in Lewiston.

His term in prison evidently did him good, for he accumulated some property and at his death was able to leave considerable real estate and some money in bank. It is believed by the officers that his widow is living in Hebron, but efforts to locate her have been unsuccessful. So far as known, she had stuck by him at some time or other left her and been a bird of passage. Young was not a drinking man, neither was Hilton, and although the former was employed as a great deal in cider mills he never became intoxicated.

Mrs. Hilton is the daughter of Charles O. Godwin, former postmaster at Waterford, and is about 47 years old. She was married to Hilton 27 years ago, and they have had six children: Mrs. Vesta Jenkins, Lyman, Clarence, Mrs. Melville Stanley, Anna and Hattie. Young had but one child, Merton, with whom he spent a part of his time while at East Waterford. Hilton was the son of Edward Hilton, who died a few years ago, and was considered one of the most substantial men of that locality, which is one of the best in the Western part of Oxford county. He was 57 years old.

Hilton and his wife lived in Auburn 12 years ago with her father, while the latter managed a boarding house for some time. Then they moved to Lewiston and Hilton sought work in the bleaching and dye works. Labor in the mill did not agree with Hilton, however, and they forsook the city and returned to East Waterford on the farm where they had formerly lived, and Mr. Godwin went to his present home at Waterford Flat. Hilton was a frail man in physique, while Young was powerfully built and of such a stature that Hilton could not successfully combat with him in a hand-to-hand encounter.

While hundreds of people from all the neighboring territory stood in the yard about the home of Merton Young on Monday afternoon simple funeral services were being held within the house for his father, the murdered man. There were none at the side of the casket, however, who were not relatives of the Young family. None of those related in blood or by marriage to the Hiltons were present, and when the funeral procession passed the house where the widow of the murderer and suicide was being nursed by her relatives the blinds were drawn and none saw the body carried by on its way to the cemetery at West Minot.

The services for Young were simple, the pastor reading passages of Scripture and offering a short prayer. These were followed by a few remarks which had no reference to the crime and then a benediction was pronounced. The widow of Young came from her home in Hebron and sat by the side of the casket during the services. When the casket was placed in a lumber wagon for its start to the grave, Mrs. Young found a seat beside a large dog in her carriage. She followed the wagon containing the casket, and behind her came another wagon containing the son of the dead man. As the procession of three human persons and a dog passed along the road to the cemetery it attracted much attention.

The funeral services for Edward Hilton were held at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Wm. H. Jenkins, at South Waterford, on Tuesday, the 25th. Rev. T. L. Perry being the officiating clergyman.

The services were very largely attended by a representative gathering of the friends and neighbors of the deceased, many being unable to gain entrance to the house—all rooms being filled. Many floral tributes were in evidence. These people were not attracted by morbid curiosity, but were there to testify by their presence that they did in no uncertain manner to their respect and esteem for one who had been a good and respected townsman. While the acts immediately preceding, and leading to the death of this unfortunate man might not be upheld by a court of law, there appears to have been extenuating circumstances connected with the case, and hundreds of persons who are acquainted with those circumstances unhesitatingly pronounce the principal act one of justifiable homicide.

An aged mother, four daughters and two sons are left to mourn the loss of a kind and indulgent son and father.

Peculiar To Itself

In what it is and what it does—containing the best blood-purifying, alterative and tonic substances and effecting the most radical and permanent cures of all humors and eruptions, relieving weak, tired, languid feelings, and building up the whole system—is true only of Hood's Sarsaparilla.

No other medicine acts like it; no other medicine has done so much real, substantial good, no other medicine has restored health and strength at so little cost.

"I was troubled with scrofula and came near losing my eyesight. For four months I could not see to do anything. After taking two bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla I could see to walk, and when I had taken eight bottles I could see as well as ever." SUE A. HARRISON, Withers, N. C.

Hood's Sarsaparilla promises to cure and keeps the promise.

When you clean house if you come across a camera tucked away somewhere, dust it off and get it out into sight, then keep the mind of the family on it till someone gets the pleasure out of that little black box that it is quite capable of giving. The expense of it need not trouble you if you will take the trouble of reading the instructions carefully and do a few cents' worth of thinking. If you are in doubt about the camera being in good working order, fetch it in to Miss Libby and have her look it over.

If you are quite sure you haven't any use for it she might buy it or help you to dispose of it.

NORWAY AND VICINITY.

Catherine Walker returned Wednesday from Boston, where she has been recovering from illness. She is gaining nicely, and is glad to get home.

By an oversight we printed a "special sale" ad. of D. S. Brooks one time more than was ordered. He intended the special sale to run only one week but as the ad. appeared twice it's reasonable for the readers of the paper to expect the sale was to continue last week. This is not true. Mr. Brooks of the Brooks Grocery Store ordered the ad. to appear only once as the special sale was to be only for one week. We make this explanation to set Mr. Brooks right with his customers.

Thursday afternoon about half past four the two horses of Charles A. Freeman hitched to a load of sawdust started from in front of H. J. Bangs' store, while Mr. Freeman was in the store, and ran away. It is not known what startled them. Mr. Freeman climbed on to the load, the team going up the street and was on top but had not held the reins when the cart struck the cross walk in the gutter near the C. B. Cummings house. Mr. Freeman was thrown into the gutter but was uninjured. The forward axle and wheels became detached and the horses drawing them ran toward home, being stopped near the pumping station by J. H. Porter, who was coming down the road, and were brought back to the cart. The cart track was blocked, and the crew brought wrecking tools from the car house which soon made it possible to get cart back and clear the track.

Barytes in Paint.

There is endless discussion about barytes in paint. Perhaps this settles the question.

Two houses exactly alike at Delhi, N. Y., the owner of which is Mr. N. A. One was recently painted Devos; the other with a barytes paint; same painter did both jobs; his name is George Gilbert.

One cost $27; the other $54. The first took 3 gallons, the other 12. Six gallons Devos, as to covering, equals twelve of the other.

Saw Lincoln Assassinated.

Sunday's Boston Globe in a full-page story commemorating the 40th anniversary of President Abraham Lincoln's assassination printed a lengthy interview with Dr. O. K. Yates, of this town. Dr. Yates was one of the two men who leaped the stage in an effort to overtake the fleeing assassin after he had "Slendered tyrants." Dr. Yates said, regarding the incident:

"In the spring of 1865 I was in Washington, summoned there as a witness before a court-martial. On the morning of April 14 the papers contained a notice that President Lincoln, Gen. Grant and other notable persons were expected to be at Ford's theatre that evening, to witness the play of 'Our American Cousin,' by Laura Keane and her dramatic company. Having an earnest desire to see the distinguished leaders of the great American conflict, and feeling that this was a rare opportunity to do so, I decided to go to the theatre."

"Realizing that this announcement would call out a crowd to the theatre, a friend of mine suggested that we buy ourselves in before the opening of the doors. This plan proved successful, and by a liberal bestowal of cash in the right quarter we gained early admittance to the theatre and got the two seats in the front row of the dress circle, next to the box opposite the one to be occupied by the President and his party. Our seats were at the point directly over the outer corner of the stage, and not more than eight feet above it."

"The theatre was gayly decorated, especially the boxes, American flags being fastened at their front and framing their sides. When the doors were opened, there was a grand rush and the whole house was very quickly filled. Every available inch of ordinary seating space was occupied, except that there was no one in any of the boxes."

"The play began at 8 o'clock, but it was some minutes after that when the President and his wife, together with young Maj. Rathbone and Miss Harris, came in and took their seats in the box. I shall never forget the wild excitement and rejoicing that was manifested by that packed audience when President Lincoln passed along the dress circle and entered his box with his party. The whole audience rose, the men swinging their hats and cheering vociferously, the ladies waving their handkerchiefs and joining in the general chorus of noise, and the orchestra playing 'Hail to the Chief.'"

"The President, looking to me unexpectedly tall and gaunt, and with a homely, of features, with a broad smile, bowed his acknowledgments to this grand ovation. Then all got quieted down again, the actors resumed their parts and soon all attention was absorbed in the play. I frequently observed the President laughing heartily at the odd and amusing sayings of the actors."

"About 10 o'clock a young man of military appearance and carrying a slouched hat in his hand passed along the wall of the dress circle on the other side of the theatre from me, going towards the door of the President's box. There was something so peculiar about the appearance of this man that my attention was unusually attracted, and supposing him to be some military man, I leaned over a pillar, asked my friend if he knew him. He answered in the negative. I had turned again to the stage, had glanced down and was looking at Laura Keane, who from the wings opposite was motioning to some one of the actors, when I noticed my friend say: 'That man has gone into the President's box.'"

"Then, at the very second that I looked over and saw the President leaning forward a little and looking out, there came the 'heavy Bang' of a pistol, smoke clouded the box, there was a struggle, and, striking back with his dagger, the man we had seen go in put his left hand on the railing of the box and leaped out."

"But he came down partially falling and struck the stage rather sprawling. He scrambled to his feet again and made off the stage as fast as he could go. There have been stories that he stood up there and swung his dagger and exclaimed, 'Slender tyrants!' Now I am as near to him as any man in that house, and my attention was strictly fastened on him, and I firmly say that he did none of those things. He just got off the stage as quickly as he could."

"The next instant after he started to run I sprang up on the dress-circle railing in front of me and made a leap for the stage just below. But I was unused to such a jump, and in striking, I wrenched my ankle in some way so sharply that for the instant I could only hobble along."

"I remained in the wings some minutes. Meanwhile the house was rapidly being emptied. At length my eye fell on a dish of water, and thinking it might be needed I managed to make my way with it out and up to the President's box. There I got a glimpse of his prostrate form breathing heavily, his head and shoulders lying in the lap of Laura Keane, drabbing her white dress with his blood."

A TRAINED NURSE

After Years of Experience, Advises Women in Regard to Their Health.

Mrs. Martha Pohlman of 55 Chester Avenue, Newark, N. J., who is a graduate nurse from the Blockley Training School, at Philadelphia, and six years Chief Clinic Nurse at the Philadelphia Hospital, writes the letter printed below. She has the advantage of personal experience, besides her professional education, and what she has to say may be absolutely relied upon.

Many other women are afflicted as she was. They can regain health in the same way. It is prudent to heed such advice from such a source.

Mrs. Pohlman writes: "I am firmly persuaded, after eight years of experience with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, that it is the safest and best medicine for any suffering woman to use."

Immediately after my marriage I found that my health began to fail me. I became weak and pale, with severe bearing-down pains, fearful backaches and frequent dizzy spells. The doctors prescribed for me, yet I did not improve. I would blight after eating and frequently become nauseated. I had an acrid discharge and could not sleep. I could hardly walk. It was as bad as a case of female trouble as I have ever known. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, however, cured me within four months. Since that time I have had occasion to recommend it to a number of patients suffering from all the ailments which I have found that it cures. I have found that it cures female troubles, where all other medicine fails. It is a grand medicine for sick women."

Money cannot buy such testimony as this—merit alone can produce such results. I am a specialist and I agree that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the most universally successful remedy for all female diseases known to medicine. When women are troubled with irregular, suppressed or painful menstruation, weakness, leucorrhoea, displacement or ulceration of the womb, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation of the ovaries, backache, bloating (flatulence), general debility, indigestion, and nervous prostration, or are beset with such symptoms as dizziness, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Succeeds Where Others Fail.

Mrs. Cora S. Briggs will start classes in MUSICAL KINDERGARTEN WORK SATURDAY, MAY 6. All who wish their children to begin the study of music during the coming year, will do well to take this opportunity, as the work is interesting, practical and up to date in every respect. The classes will not conflict with the regular school work and no home practice will be required during the summer. Price $5 for Term of 20 Lessons.

Mrs. Eva Randall is quite sick with a bad cold. Eli B. Bean spent several days in Portland, recently. About 30 people went to Portland, Saturday, from this station. Alvin S. Cram is sawing wood with gasoline power, about the village. Laura G. Staples is home from Lewiston high school for the spring vacation. Ernest L. Frink is doing a good business as agent for a patent mop and dustpan. Mrs. Mary Durgin and family move into C. F. Swan's rent, lately vacated by Leslie Poore. Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Linscott and little son Paul spent last week in Boston and vicinity with relatives. S. J. and F. R. Staples have opened their tailor shop and expect to have plenty of work all summer. Thawing out, and laying new water pipes seems to be the order just now, every other family being without water. Ernest Leavitt, with his wife and baby, is visiting his mother, Mrs. Wm. Boynton. They spend one day in Naples. Billie are out for the drama, "Down in Maine," which will be played May 1st by the Dramatic Club, the proceeds to go to the Universalist circle. A dance after the drama.

We, the undersigned, do hereby agree to refund the money on a 50-cent bottle of Greene's Warranted Syrup of Tar if it fails to cure your cough or cold. We also guarantee a 25-cent bottle to prove satisfactory or money refunded. FRANK KIMBALL, Norway. J. H. BROOKS, South Paris.

L. J. Trask of Bethel was in town Sunday the 16th.

Jas. W. Brown, who went to his home at Rumford Falls two weeks ago, has returned, and finished getting out timber to engage his mother's barn.

We were sorry to see H. T. Chase, of Upton, being carried on a bed to Bethel, from where he is going to the Maine General Hospital, for treatment.

Mrs. Carrol S. Farrar, of Walpole, Mass., recently visited her husband's mother, Mrs. A. M. Farrar, of this town. Since she left, J. H. Farrar, of Deering, and Mrs. Francis Wood, of Randolph, N. H., have visited Mrs. Farrar. Mrs. A. W. Farrar's son and daughter have staid with her several days.

Called Up in the Night for Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

"We consider Chamberlain's Cough Remedy the best we sell," writes J. L. True & Son of West Epping, N. H. "We have one child who thinks there is nothing like it for a cough. A few nights ago a man called us up at 2:30 a. m. to go to our store and get him a bottle of this remedy as his little girl had the croup. He knew it would cure her for he had tried it many times before." This remedy is for sale by Noyes Drug Store, Norway; Shurtliff's, South and West Paris, 19.

Catarhal Troubles Prevalent.

Spring Months Cause Sickness. Breathe Hyomei, and Be Cured of Catarh.

Catarhal troubles are more common at this season than at any other time of the year. The sudden changes that come during the spring months are productive of many cases of catarh that without proper treatment will become chronic.

The pleasantest, most convenient, and only scientific method for the treatment and cure of catarh, is Hyomei. Simply put twenty drops in the little pocket inhaler that comes with every outfit, and then breathe it for three minutes four times a day.

No dangerous drugs or alcoholic concoctions are taken into the system when Hyomei is used. Breathe through the inhaler, the balsamic fragrance of Hyomei penetrates to the most remote cells of the nose and throat, and thus kills the catarhal germs, heats the irritated mucous membrane, and gives complete and permanent cure.

Thousands of testimonials have been given as to the astonishing cures made by this remedy. J. S. Nugent, treasurer of the New York Life Insurance Company, writes: "Hyomei has completely cured my daughter of catarh, from which she had been a sufferer for years."

The complete Hyomei outfit costs but one dollar, and as the inhaler will last a lifetime and there is sufficient Hyomei for several weeks' treatment, it is the most economical catarhal remedy known. Extra bottles can be procured for fifty cents. Ask Noyes Drug Store to show you the strong guarantee under which they sell Hyomei.

Off for the Philippines.

Fort Oglethorpe, Troop F, 7th U. S. Cav., Dodge, Ga., 5-12-05.

This is in all probability the last letter you will receive from me until I write from the Philippines, which I shall do as soon as I get there.

We leave here the 30th inst., so you see our stay is very short. We are to turn all Q. M. D. property over to the Quartermaster, Saturday, that we are not to take with us. We will not take any horses or anything that goes with one. All we take is carbine and belt, sabre belt, 100 rounds of ammunition and belt, shelter tent and poles, haversack and blanket, 1 box locker and a telescope grip, which is issued by the Government, and they are very handy as they hold as much as box lockers. The box lockers are shipped right through to the Philippines but we keep our grips with us, and in them we are to have 1 blue blouse, 1 pair blue pants, 5 suits underwear, 6 pairs socks, 3 suits of shoes, 3 pairs shoes, 3 chamber shirts, 2 blue shirts, towels, soap and anything you wish to take.

On Monday the people of Chattanooga will present the National colors to us as a testimonial of their kindly relations between us and themselves. The people of Chattanooga have always liked Clusters' famous 7th and I, myself, have always been treated with best of respect by them, so you see we are leaving behind a lot of good friends.

I would like very much to see some of my old Norway friends, but as that is impossible, I can only wish them the best of health and happiness. I suppose Norway has changed very much since I was there. It is ten years last March. It hardly seems that long but time goes quick. I am now 33 years old, so you see half of my life is gone. Well, I guess most of my old friends have forgotten me by this time. Yours very truly,

IRVING L. LORING.

SEEKS BEFORE THE EYES.

Seeing Things In The Day Time.

There are Thousands of Persons Afflicted This Way. Ninety-Nine Times Out of One Hundred It Is Caused by Either the Liver, Stomach, Bowels or Digestive Organs.

In no part of the body are the effects of constipation more quickly noticed than in the condition of the eyes. They quickly respond to the poisonous elements which are absorbed into the blood in chronic cases of liver torpidity and sluggish bowel action. When you see a yellowish tinge in the whites of the eyes it shows quickly the biliousness which pervades the whole system; but it is the specks and flitting objects in the vision itself that are even more quickly apparent. Thousands of people see things in the daytime, their vision is blurred, spots come between them and other objects which seem quite intangible, almost imaginary, and as they turn their heads they vanish as with a flash. Such conditions can always be traced to a torpid liver and a congested condition of the bowels, yet can always be cured by the well-advised use of Smith's Pineapple and Butternut Pills, which cure constipation as if by magic. They regulate the functions of the liver, cleanse the poisons from the blood, remove the bilious elements from the circulation and strengthen the nerves. If your eyes are clouded without an appreciable cause, if you have specks and floating objects before your vision, use Smith's Pineapple and Butternut Pills and get the poisonous elements out of your blood. Remember they always cure sick headache, constipation and biliousness in one night. 25 cents all dealers.

Driving the Logs.

The business which is just now claiming the close attention of many people of Bethel and vicinity is that of getting the thousands of cords of pulp wood out of the small streams into the main Androscoggin river.

To the uninformed it would be surprising to know how small a stream can be utilized as a water way for the driving of this pulpwood. Brooks which in the summer season are nearly dry are pressed into service in the spring as floatable streams, and during the winter hundreds of cords of timber are landed on their banks to be floated out with the early spring rains. This year the operators have thus far waited in vain for any rise of water and the work is going on at a low and expensive rate.

Fred L. Edwards of Bethel has a crew on Alder river, where he has several thousand cords to run out. There is little water, but each day some of the logs are run out. Some days during the past week 300 or more cords have been taken into the main river by his crews and thus weeks will be required to do what with a good pitch of water could be done in many days.

On Sunday river, where there are some 7,000,000 of spruce pulpwood to come out very little has been accomplished. On this river, W. A. Emery of Bethel has charge of the driving of logs for the International Paper Company, which owns the timber. Mr. Emery has for some time had a large crew of men in camp at the head waters waiting patiently for water, which has not come. Although some days a little progress is made. All these men have to be boarded but are not under pay while waiting.

On Pleasant river in Mason and near West Bethel, Hastings Brothers of Bethel have large crews working as best they can to run out some 5,000 cords of pulpwood, and F. L. Edwards also has considerable timber on this stream.

On Mill stream near Bethel village, E. S. Kilborn has a lot of timber, which is being taken into the Androscoggin although at a low pitch of water. D. R. Hastings with some 5,000 cords of pulpwood has his near drive some two miles off the main river at Gilead, where Wild river enters the main stream.

On the Androscoggin the work of throwing in is going on and crews are at work putting in booms and preventing the formation of jams. Last year was one of waiting for the river-drivers but this season is still more unfavorable and unless favorable conditions come the drives will be late in reaching the great river. All this means dollars and many of them and adds greatly to the cost of the product.—News.
